APCPH 2026 convene more than 900 national and international leaders across public health, clinical medicine, academia, and policy. The APCPH 2026 concentrates on harnessing technology, fostering multi-sectoral partnerships, and empowering communities to address ongoing gaps in public health systems under the theme:

“Closing Public Health Gaps Through Technology, Partnership & People”

This platform is designed not only to facilitate scientific exchange but also to drive practical, real-world solutions by fostering strategic partnerships across sectors. It brings together stakeholders from healthcare, academia, industry, and the community to share insights, align priorities, and collaborate on impactful initiatives that translate knowledge into action.

ABOUT APCPH 2026

The Asia-Pacific Conference on Public Health (APCPH) is a biennial event organised by the CPHM, Academy of Medicine Malaysia, supported by the Ministry of Health. The conference serves as a dynamic platform to promote public health practice and research, particularly within the Asia-Pacific region. It also provides valuable opportunities for Malaysian public health practitioners to engage, exchange insights, and collaborate with experts from both local and international communities. APCPH 2026 brought in other key players, including the Malaysia AIDS Foundation, the Malaysia AIDS Council and Johor State Health Department.
